The layout of the house offers, on the ground floor, a kitchen, a living room with French windows, a stone fireplace, and access to the terrace and garden with old apple trees and currant bushes. Furthermore, there are 2 bedrooms, a bathroom, a guest toilet, a utility room, and a small cellar. Three bedrooms and a bathroom are in the attic.

The ground floor of the house boasts above-standard high ceilings (3.7 m), which add elegance and brightness to the entire space. The perimeter walls of the house are 67 cm thick, so it maintains a comfortable temperature even in the summer and at the same time retains heat well in the winter. Facilities include large casement windows modeled after the original windows, a heated swimming pool with saltwater with a remote-controlled slatted roof and a countercurrent system, an outdoor shower, floating floors with underfloor heating on the ground floor, air-conditioning in the attic, a fully equipped kitchen, electric boiler, its own water well with a water purifier, and a large septic tank.

The house was completely reconstructed and renovated in 1993-1994 and the work included undercutting walls, a drainage system, floor insulation, the replacement of electrical wiring and water distribution mains, the facades were renovated, roofs, gutters, and windows were replaced, the garages were extended, new bathrooms, a water purifier for the whole house was installed, and the water well was reconstructed. A remote-controlled garage and parking for 4 cars was built in front of the house on its own land. The house has been continuously maintained and repaired, and in August 2021 the submersible pump in the well and the standing pressure vessel were replaced.

It is located 45 minutes away from Prague by car and is ideal for weekends or permanent living close to nature. Not far from the house is a pond, and the Konopiště Castle Park can be reached in about 15 minutes by walking along the pond and the stream.
